Caring for an Elderly Relative

Within the family, caring for elderly relatives comes naturally. The love and care many adult children receive growing up become reciprocal, particularly in the case of their aging parents. But with the advent of longer lives, it is not uncommon for seniors to care for their parents or spouse.

Discussing Treatment Is an Essential Part of Establishing Advance Directives

There is no doubt that contemplating our own death is one of life's greatest challenges. Yet it is crucial to think carefully about the medical treatment we would want at the end of life. Medical technology can now keep us alive long after we have ceased to enjoy a meaningful quality of life.

Client Testimonial

Joanna Perez is the best. We could not have gotten through the process without her and Vincent. Joanna returns emails and phone calls promptly. She is on top of her field. She is delightful to work with. I am a lawyer myself and I know the benefits of being represented by the best.
