Living Wills: How to Prepare Them

A living will, also known as an advance health care directive, is a legal document that stipulates what actions you would like medical professionals to take if you become incapable of making decisions. A living will is crucial for all adults because accidents or the sudden onset of a severe or terminal illness can happen anytime, rendering you unable to make medical choices.

Client Testimonial

My parents were happy with the estate plan Russo Law Group created for them, so I decided to contact the firm to do my will and advance directives. I am very glad I did. My attorney, Deanna Eble, was personable, knowledgeable, and experienced. She took the time to answer all of my questions and used anecdotal stories to explain some of the more complicated estate planning concepts. I never felt rushed while meeting with her. I plan to have Deanna design some trusts for my children. I highly recommend both her and Russo Law Group.
